*Happy 2017 to all
Dana Wharf Lady Anglers!*

I hope everyone had a wonderful holiday season!!

Now that Christmas and New Years Day are behind us, I look forward to our Annual Awards Banquet and the upcoming fishing season. We have three new additions to our Board and a lot of new members to the club. I look forward to fishing with all of you and hope that this year's charters are as successful as the last year! In this newsletter is additional information on the 2017 Charters, the Charter Sign-up Night and the Awards Banquet. Please note the dates and/or RSVP dates. Darlen Lee has made some beautiful changes to the newsletter that I'm sure everyone will enjoy! Take care everyone, I hope to see you at the Charter Sign Up meeting, the Awards Banquet or onboard soon!!

*Agnes Roshanaee
President of this great club!*

At the time of this printing

Captain's Corner

Reporting Captain Sal Salazar - El Dorado

The Bluefin bite off of Tanner Bank has been fished on the eastern side of the bank. Water temperature has been at 58.6 degrees with 8 to 12 foot swells from 4 to 8 seconds apart, the winds blowing 20 - 25 knots. The fish that showed earlier in the season were in the 80 to 100 lb. class range, the fish that we were taking in December were in the 40 to 50 lb., with an occasional 60 to 80 lb. fish being caught. The Bluefin were caught on 60 to 100 lb. test line, with the average angler using 60 - 80 lb. test line on short rods with 2 speed gear. For bait, squid with a 3/4 oz. to 1-1/2 oz. glow-in-the dark sliding sinker, 3/0 and 4/0 hooks, heavy gauge circle hooks seem to work the best. Fish were also being caught using glow in the dark Shimano Flat Falls. The bite was in the early morning and in the dark. The dark bite shut off in early December. The bluefin bite is almost over as the weather will probably keep most boats tied to the dock. But these are the items you should have in your gear if you want to be ready for the re-bite!

There's only one gal on the boat with a bluefin, why can't we fish for rockfish?

The Tanner Bank is in the Cow Cod Conservation closure (say that 3 times fast) so once the boat has taken a tuna, the vessel cannot possess any rockfish what-so-ever. If you are only rock fishing, you can only fish it in 20 fathoms or less and cannot possess any tuna. So when the crew tells you, you can't keep a fish, they are saving you from a hefty fine.

Please have your favorite Captains write in with a report of their season, their boat, their expectations for the upcoming season or anything else they would like to have in the newsletter. dwlanews@icloud.com

Bev - bgfhsbev@cox.net

For those of you who know Lou Quigley, she was one of our "40 Year" patch recipients at the 2016 banquet, her husband, Mike, passed away on December 12, 2016. Lou had not been able to fish with us these last few years but has always remained a dedicated member of the DWLA club. Kay sent her a card from the club, thank you Kay.

Shala Mansur O'Keefe & Todd Mansur's mother, Katie, passed away on December 27, 2016. Todd posted this message on FB on Dec. 28:

Last night in her bed at home with my wonderful sister Shala our mom passed away peacefully. She fought to stay with us battling pain every day. She is loved and remembered by her loving family and friends. I'm going to miss you so much mom. You were the most loving and caring person I have ever known. You gave me my sense of humor and taught me to love. I will think of you everyday. RIP mom.

Sorry for your losses, you are in our thoughts and prayers.

Bev took Nadine Maze a little artificial Christmas tree with fish ornaments, the two spent time decorating it. Nadine had a great time! Nadine had to go back to the rehab center, she had some complications. Nadine has no email or phone number right now, we'll let you know more info. later.

Anybody knowing of any Sunshine & Raindrops input please email or call Bev as soon as possible so she can send out the proper acknowledgements.

BEV'S FAMOUS SHRIMP MOLD

2	cans	shrimp, drained and chopped	or
2	cups	cooked chopped shrimp
8	oz.	cream cheese
1	can	tomato soup
2	envelopes	unflavored gelatin
1/2	cup	cold water
1	cup	mayonnaise
1/4 to 1/2	cup	chopped celery
1/4 to 1/2	cup	chopped green bell pepper
1/4 to 1/2	cup	chopped green onion
1	Dash	of Tabasco
1	oiled	mold

Melt cream cheese and soup in saucepan over low heat. Remove from heat. Add the gelatin to cold water and dissolve. Add gelatin mixture to soup mixture. Add shrimp, vegetables and mayonnaise and mix well. Pour into oiled mold. Refrigerate until ready to serve. To unmold easily, run a knife along edge of mold. Place mold in small amount of warm water to loosen. Invert on a serving plate.

Serve with Wheat Thins or other crackers.

Charters can be relaxing and fun, some anglers even take a much needed rest ... someone sent this picture in ...look who's sleeping!

Letter from your Editor

Greetings! I hope you all had a wonderful holiday season. I am going to do the newsletter once a month. I feel it will provide you with up to date information.

The official club information will have a blue heading bar, perhaps you might want to read that info. first. Under the title will be the contact information for the person in charge of the section. The other info. will have a RED text heading, this will be all the fun stuff.

The club welcomes all of you to send your photos, poems, quotes, etc., tips, ideas and suggestions.

Send info. to: dwlaneews@icloud.com if you send it to my other email address I might not get it ... as I think I have been added to every mailing list on the planet.

I hope you enjoyed the first newsletter of 2017. Now go out and make it a great day!

Tipping is not a place in China

Sometimes the question comes up as to how much one should tip on a fishing trip. There was a big article on sport boat tipping in the Western Outdoor news. Basically it said, if you enjoy your trip and you want to show your appreciation to the crew, you should tip approximately 15-20% of the cost of the trip i.e. a $60.00 trip, your tip should be at least $12.00 (20%). So when you are planning a trip, remember to budget enough cash for the following: food, beverages, fish filleting, jackpot entry, Mexican permits, etc. ... and an appropriate tip. The Captain and Crew at Dana Point are among the finest, so let's show them our appreciation this year and reflect our satisfaction in their hard earned tip!

Tanner Bank

So just where is the Tanner Bank? Station 46047

http://www.ndbc.noaa.gov/station_page.php?station=46047

121 nautical miles west of San Diego, CA

32.398 N 119.498 W (32°23'54" N 119°29'54" W)

For us to understand ... it's 20 miles south of the west end of San Clemente Island. Tanner Bank comes up to a high spot but does not surface the water like the Cortes Bank does, which is 12 miles south of the Tanner Bank. See map in this newsletter. This is where the big bluefin of 2016 were being caught.

Weather

Before going on a trip, it's always a good idea to check your weather. You can call Bev because she's kinda like the weather lady, or you can click on "Latest NWM Forecast" at the website below, you can always rely on the National Data Buoy Center.

Kim Crawford aka “Kimba Listic”

In our family, you were given a pole and taught how to fish before you could say your first word. Summers were times rich with Grandparents, Vin Scully, Mt. Whitney, and Fresh Water Rainbow Trout grilling in the iron skillet over the campfire.

Around 1975, at 15, our family began fishing down at Dana Wharf – before there ever was a harbor. Seen in the background are my Grandmother, Grandfather, Uncle, Aunt, and 1st Cousin as I caught my first perch. My first cousin’s son, Beau Monson, now rocks his summers as a deckhand for some of our DWLA charters and takes time to educate me in the ways of my rods and salt water fishing. I believe fishing is the cornerstone of our family’s ability to maintain the types of bonds able to endure the tests of time.

Kim Crawford, PhD
an accomplished writer and artist, shares her views on Perspectives here in

Come Together...

Each of us carry along a nuance of every thought, feeling, and experience we have encountered throughout our lives. Each of these miniscule events serve to jade or color our perspective for life and people. Through them we begin to establish our identities and flavor our uniqueness with our own styles. In effect, it is our attempt to become recognized as the individuals we have grown to become and decide we either like who we are or not.

As a full-time Saddleback College student, it is with each semester that I encounter new students who have not yet met me or who have yet to experience any part of who I am. Their youth does not protect them from already forming an immediate judgement about who I must be; considering I am there. I watch with amazement as their expressions then grow into compete confusion as a student who is familiar to me comes in to embrace me in a way that demonstrates genuine mutual respect.

Because I seek to cultivate relationships that span any and all generational or communication gaps it became imperative for me to learn how to set my ego aside and, instead, simply question where my point of view was coming from. Taking the time to ask myself why I felt a certain way about something often revealed how my core value is not what it once was and I then need to adjust or reframe my belief to suit the occasion. Sometimes this can be done by simply placing yourself into the other person’s shoes to view the world from their perspective.

Our needs as humans to become accepted by others can sometimes grow to flavor our choices and actions. Judgements are formed without the slightest bit of factual information being used to filter whatever notions our minds conjure up about a situation or group of people. Everything just somehow becomes lost up in some great big mix up blended with feelings and it all just adds up to a recipe for disaster. Considering how each person goes through life creating their own set of beliefs based on their individual experiences, customs, cultures, etc., it is a wonder to me how anyone ever comes together on anything. Compromise is the solution most sought after in that everyone comes out a winner and should be kept in mind when seeking to clear matters. In that each of us constantly bear witness to the widening of our generational gaps being born by the electronic revolution, can’t we also see how it is up to us to engage and move forward towards a resolve? How many of us have had to ask our children, grandchildren, with help to maneuver an electronic gizmo? I would venture to say – every single one of us! Or, we choose instead, to sit there too embarrassed to ask for their help only to remain stuck in our rut. Either way, the choice remains ours and ours alone to remain stuck in stone or flow like water.

Natures displays are always creations best answer to the purest form of things. Entrainment is natures form of how simple coming into sync with the events taking place in and around you can make life a joy to be living. I mean, just imagine how nice things could be if we each learned how to go with the flow instead of fighting against the grain all the time.

Let's all take part and start today with each of us making a commitment to seeing things from even one other person's point of view – one time a day. It is in this way we can begin to chip away at our hardened and outdated beliefs which are clouding our vision of what is really going on and preventing us from living a life of joy and peaceful easy feelings.

The ability for people to overcome their varied backgrounds and come to a mutual resolve depends largely on the individual's mindset and how they view themselves either as a part of a collective or as an individual left to stand alone and fight the good fight to maintain their points of view.

Nobody is right. Nobody is wrong. Everyone just holds their own unique individual perspective. Every day I learn something new. Humans biggest flaw is that they become adamant and so firmly rooted in their individual constructs to the point of growing so closed minded that there is no longer any way to bridge the gaps.

Things are not always what they seem to be. Miscommunications and misunderstandings take place every moment of our lives. Each of us contain the necessary strength to rise above. Most people plod along in their daily lives without much hope for any sort of change to take place in the bane of their existence. Each of us have the power within ourselves to break down these walls. Being a member of the Dana Wharf Lady Anglers infuses me with the strength of knowing I have a massive group of the most wonderful women to have ever come together standing beside me in all I do.

Fishing is a global language capable spanning across otherwise impenetrable barriers. As DWLA, we have formed to engage in and share this language of love. Unlike many other rituals and systems of belief, fishing builds a bond which can be spoken without words. Let us each begin to let our deeds do the talking.

Catalina Island History

For those ladies who are fortunate to be on the Catalina trip, here's a little history....

Santa Catalina Island has a long and storied history. There have been inhabitants on Catalina Island for the past 7,000 years. The Island's history as a resort community spans only the last 120 years. The first Europeans to arrive claimed the Island for the Spanish Empire, it was later turned over to Mexico and then to the United States. The island has served as a stop for smugglers, gold diggers, pirates, hunters, the Union army and missionaries.

By 1864, after a series of owners, the Island was entirely owned by James Lick, who was once considered the wealthiest man in California. After a few failed attempts at a resort development, Santa Catalina was sold to the sons of Phineas Banning in 1891. The Banning Brothers established the Santa Catalina Island Company to develop the island as a resort. The brothers developed the city of Avalon, and paved the first dirt roads into the island's rugged interior. They built hunting lodges, like the Banning House Lodge, and ran stagecoach tours around the island. They created access to Avalon's beach areas, like Lovers Cove, Casino Point and Descanso Beach. In 1909, they built the green pleasure pier, which still stands today. All was going well until 1915, when a fire broke out, burning down half of Avalon's buildings. The fire, along with the hard times and restrictions of World War I, forced the brothers to sell the island in 1919.

William Wrigley Jr., founder of the chewing gum, bought nearly every share of the Santa Catalina Island Company until he owned the controlling interest. Wrigley invested millions in the island, building infrastructure and attractions. To bring attention and tourists to the Island, he made the Island the spring training home of the Chicago Cub's, which he owned. Wrigley built the Catalina Country Club to house the team's lockers and provide a gathering place for players. The team continued to train on the island until 1951. In 1929, he built the iconic Catalina Casino, which boasts the world's largest circular ballroom. Philip Wrigley, son of William Wrigley Jr., took over and continued his father's vision, after his father passed away in 1932. During World War II, the island served as a military training facility and was closed to tourists.

The Island was a popular spot with the Hollywood elite during the 1930s, 40s and 50s. It was also a popular spot for Hollywood filming. Many silent films were filmed here. Hollywood filming continues today.

In 1975, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Wrigley and Philip's sister, Dorothy Wrigley Offield, deeded 42,000 acres owned by the Santa Catalina Island Company to the Catalina Island Conservancy, giving the Conservancy control of 88% of the island. The conservancy is the oldest and largest private land trust in Southern California. Catalina Island is home to 60 plant, animal and insect species found nowhere else in the world.

Today, the Santa Catalina Island Company is owned by descendants of William Wrigley Jr., who carry on his vision for building and maintaining a world class island resort.
